

Paulaner Salvator: The Father of All Double Bock Beers

Often copied, but never equaled . . .

The creation of such a full-bodied beer was inspired by the Lenten fasting ritual of the Paulaner monks; from its historic beginnings up to current day, Salvator has always been appreciated as the father of all double bocks.

Brewed using the finest Munich malts, Salvator is a bottom-fermented double bock, and is a beautiful chestnut brown color. Each sip provides delectable chocolate flavor, balanced by a light note of hops in the background. Salvator has been brewed for over 375 years, and contains 7.9% alcohol by volume.

Carry on the proud tradition of the Paulaner monks by serving Paulaner's irresistible, perfect double bock – Salvator!
